

Setanta Income Opportunities Fund

Q1 2021

Fund Description

The Income Opportunities Fund ('the Fund') is an actively managed portfolio primarily comprising global equities but with the flexibility to invest in assets which offer attractive income and reasonable value. These assets include fixed income, property (including REITs) and cash. The Fund is not constrained by limitations on the level of any given asset. In practice, the Fund has had its greatest weight in equities, reflecting the breadth of that market, Setanta's expertise in that area, and the option writing strategy employed by the Fund. Nevertheless, property, fixed income and cash have all played meaningful roles in past returns of the Fund, at times, comprising up to 50% of the Fund's assets. The portfolio is managed in accordance with the Setanta investment philosophy. That is, the managers seek to own good assets for the long-term at prices below what they think they're worth, carefully considering each investment's risk profile. The Fund is managed by three portfolio managers, who also look to leverage off the experience and knowledge of their colleagues. The aim is to achieve a sensible level of diversification on a sector and geographic basis.

The Fund employs an option writing strategy. This entails the sale of both call and put options in return for a cash premium, representing an income stream that boosts the underlying income yield of the Fund. This strategy is employed in a conservative fashion, as all options written are fully covered.

The Income Opportunities Fund has two investment objectives:

1. To generate an annual income yield at a target rate. This is declared at the start of each financial year.
2. To achieve capital appreciation over the long term.

Our Investment Principles

We do not believe markets are efficient

We invest below our estimate of intrinsic value

We invest in businesses rather than buying stocks

Preservation of our clients' capital is key

Investing is a marathon, not a sprint

We are not afraid to swim against the tide

We consider scenarios rather than making forecasts

Businesses we own must have strong balance sheets

We make mistakes and always endeavour to learn from them

We will act with integrity in everything we do

Commentary

At the onset of the Covid-19 pandemic unprecedented fiscal stimulus was unleashed to prevent a pandemic-induced recession. These injections resulted in an abundance of cash in what was already an ultra-low interest rate world, fuelling further risk and debt appetite. As we round the first anniversary of the pandemic, we reflect on some of the consequences of this abundance, with examples surfacing this quarter in retail trading, debt-fuelled investments and in markets in general.

We commented last year on the post-Covid surge of retail investors and their ability to effect market moves through their use of social media, but this phenomenon was dramatically demonstrated early in the first quarter when GameStop shares jumped over 350%. Retail investors, mobilised through Reddit, bet heavily on the video game retailer in a bid to realise ‘the demise of Melvin Capital’¹ – one of a number of short sellers whose losses mounted as the share price soared. Caught off-guard, retail trading platforms, including Robinhood, temporarily halted retail access, precipitating further wild swings in the stock over the following days. Both Melvin and Robinhood were forced to seek emergency cash injections of over $2bn from investors.

The perils of significant financial leverage were also highlighted as the quarter drew to a close, when Archegos Capital was unable to deposit additional collateral for substantial positions it had amassed using leverage provided by some of the world’s largest investment banks. These banks raced to liquidate the leveraged positions in fire sales which saw over $20b of stock dumped into the market causing some share prices to plummet over 30% intraday and yielding lending losses estimated at $7bn.

Meanwhile, most global equity indices have rallied above the all-time highs they had reached shortly before the pandemic. Expectations of higher interest rates and inflation took hold during the quarter pushing bond yields higher, with the US 10 year Treasury yield increasing 80 basis points returning it to pre-pandemic levels. While market conditions have been turbulent and the outlook is uncertain, we reiterate our view that holding a balanced portfolio of good quality investments, underpinned by with strong market positions underpins the Fund’s ability to withstand a host of scenarios. The Fund’s long term performance has been achieved across time periods in which interest rates, inflation rates and exchange rates have fluctuated and monetary policy has oscillated between easing and tightening. We believe that prudence, such as the avoidance of equities with poor business models and bonds with uncertain cash flows, is rewarded through steady cash flows and solid returns on our investments over the long term.

The Fund climbed 5.9% over the first few months of the year. While the Fund’s equity, bond and property asset classes were all positive contributors during the quarter, the equity contingent provided the majority of the performance, with Cisco, Intel, Exxon and NWS among the top contributors. After lagging the broader IT sector last year Intel and Cisco played catch up in the first quarter of 2021, outperforming the sector as growth expectations and optimism returned. Cisco is showing signs of progress in its move to a subscription model and an uptick in IT spend by Cisco’s customers, whose IT activities have been in firefighting mode for much of the past year, is being anticipated. During the quarter veteran chip designer Pat Gelsinger returned to Intel, joining as CEO. He recently announced that Intel has resolved the technical issues which have been delaying production of its next generation of semiconductor chips and that it plans to beef up its foundry business.

Oil prices endured a significant decline last year due to the impact of Covid-19 on worldwide production and transport. As the world began to reopen, the price of oil, and indeed many commodities, bounced in 2021 with Exxon’s share price trajectory closely tracking oil price moves. We believe Exxon is a disciplined company which will continue to generate good returns.

Commentary

NWS also benefitted from positive economic sentiment during the quarter swinging from a detractor in 2020 to one of the top contributors in the 1st quarter of 2021. The market was pleasantly surprised by the company's positive results announcement and the reiteration of its dividend policy. NWS is well placed to take advantage of the industrialisation of China over the long term.

During the quarter we purchased for the Fund a position in Nestlé, a well invested consumer-focused conglomerate. While Nestlé is renowned for KitKats and Nescafé it in fact boasts a diverse and differentiated portfolio of market leading brands in attractive categories, with core focus areas including pet care, premium waters and coffee. Its Purina brand is the world's number 2 in pet food.

In addition to maintaining sensibly low levels of debt and a focus on generating good returns, Nestlé converts over 90% of its net income to cash. It has demonstrated a strong commitment and capacity to pay dividends with a track record of dividend payments exceeding 75 years and dividend growth extending to 25 years.

Since the appointment of new management 4 years ago we have seen some positive changes at Nestlé including a refinement of the company's strategic direction and a focus on reducing bureaucracy to improve the agility and speed with which new products can be brought to market. We acknowledge the inclusion of a returns metric in management compensation conditions and we expect Nestlé to generate a solid return over the life of our investment supported by its strong growth prospects and a dividend yield of 2.7%.
